Under Mrs. C. E. Rush
Copy of a letter from Rev. Milo H. Gates, Vicar of The Chapel of the Intercession, N.Y. City, to Mrs. Wilfred Worcester, Natl. War Work Council, 347, Madison Ave. N.Y.

July, 15th. '18.

My dear Mrs Worcester.

I wish to send you word concerning Mrs C.E. Rush whom I have known for ten years. She is one of the most efficient women I have ever had the pleasure to be acquainted with. For some time she has been at the head of the Church Periodical Club in this congregation, which is the largest organization of the sort in the country. Her work is marked by a high degree of efficiency.

Previous to her marriage, she had over ten years experience as assistant manager in one of the best known book stores in the country. There she had charge of the accounts and was also assistant buyer.

Mrs Rush is an excellent typist and understands modern filing system. In fact is a thoroughly trained business woman.

In addition, Mrs Rush is a lady. I have observed that she is one of the most successful managers in any of our enterprises that we have, and that (what is sometimes rare with efficient people) she works with others happily, and has the power of inspiring them to unusual effort.

Mrs Rush is of an old American family, and most loyal.

As you will observe, while I may not have succeeded, I have honestly attempted to do what I could honestly do, and that is to give Mrs Rush the very highest sort of testimonial. It is always a pleasure, as you will agree, when one can do it unconditionally.

Ver sincerely yours,

(Signed , Milo H. Gates

Extract from Intercession Notes.

Thousands and thousands of books, periodicals and interesting papers have been sent by our Church Periodical Club to soldiers, sailors, Base Hospitals and to the Hospitals and Philanthropic Institutions of this city.

Does this congregation realize all that this means--first to those who receive this interesting reading matter? Also does it realize the work involved? Pretty nearly all the work and burden of this has fallen on our earnest, efficient and enthusiastic librarian, Mrs Rush. I make an appeal &c.

Dear Mr. Rush:

It has come to my attention through Mr. Wood that two visitors have gained access to the building after closing hours recently, because you had gone out on the terrace with a "friend" and left the front door open behind you. Moreover, I believe this is not the first of such occurrences. The obvious way of preventing a repetition would be to give you a key to the front door, but a very small amount of thought on your part would show that the withholding of the key was a deliberate one. There can be no good reason that I can see why you should have occasion to use the front door of our building after closing hours. As you know, leaving the front door open is an infringement of one of the fixed rules of our Museum - a rule which you as responsible for the front door during the daytime, should be the last to infringe. Leaving the door open deprives the building of any protection that has been devised for it and places our night watchman at the mercy of anyone who might enter and conceal himself.

Nor is this the only matter in which there has been recent complaint concerning your failure to do what is expected of you. I was told that during the week of September 2nd, you allowed yourself to be locked out of the building by a visitor who closed the front door which you had left open in order to mail a letter, and that you thereupon made your way round the block to the back door leaving the building entirely unprotected in the meantime, and the telephone entirely unattended. Again the front door was left open by you with a visitor inside the building. It would have been bad enough to have left the door open after the visitor had gone.

At the time the new building was completed there was considerable discussion by the trustees as to whether we should permit you to return and occupy the quarters in which you now reside. Just the sort of carelessness exemplified by the two instances outlined above was predicted at that time, and there was strong opposition to having you return. It was finally decided to leave in my hands any action that might become necessary if there was not some improvement on your part. In the arrangement of the work thought was given to simplifying your share so that there would be no reason for thinking that the multitude of your duties was partly responsible for your failure to perform them. I myself, on more than one occasion, have had to wait at the front door an undue length of time.

Please consider this as a final warning.

Very truly yours,

President.

ment of the work thought was given to simplifying your share so that there would be no reason for thinking that the multitude of your duties was partly responsible for your failure to perform them. I myself, on more than one occasion, have had to wait at the front door an undue length of time.

This letter is being written to say that it seems to me you have exhausted every consideration which we ought to show you. If, after the time you have spent in the service of our organization you cannot fulfill the simplified duties now required of you, you should seek another field of usefulness, and if further complaints against you are brought to my attention, I shall feel obliged to exercise the authority which the Council placed in my hands.

Very truly yours,

President.
